

TERMS AND CONDITIONS

1. Oral Story Competition is an initiative of Street Library Ghana (hereinafter “Organizer”) to contribute to Cultural enrichment and sharing in Africa, whilst contributing to oral traditional knowledge among young people.
2. The oral stories that are eligible for the said competition are 1. Customs, 2. Traditions in Beliefs that are Superstitions, 3. Traditions in Prose and Literature (Jokes, Riddles, Stories, Rhymes, Tall tales, Ghost Stories etc), 4. Proverbs and Adages, 5. Legends (Eg, Kwaku Ananse in Ghana), 6. Traditions in Songs (at marriage, at birth, at death of chief, etc), 7. Traditions in Dances ( Eg, Adowa, Agbadza etc).
3. The participants acknowledge and guarantee that, in submitting the oral stories for the present competition they are not violating any (written or oral) private contract with third parties or any other legal right of a third person upon the story. Should there be any claim of third persons in this regard, the concerned participant agrees and guarantees that is will assume the legal responsibility (if any) in front of such third party and will keep the Organizer of the present competition unharmed.
4. Rights upon Oral Stories. By participating in any way in this competition, the participants agree that the oral story will appear on Street Library Website and on its Mobile Apps. It will be freely available and accessible for people to learn about oral narratives from these participating countries. The participants agree and guarantee that they will not use their rights in order to impede in any way the competition.
5. The participants agree and guarantee that the Organizer may use the oral stories submitted by them for the benefit of the present competition and future projects. The participants agree and guarantee that the Organizer may extract financial benefit from or through said stories without any obligation to share such benefit with the participants.
6. Judge. The Judge for this competition is Mr Hayford Siaw.
7. Any kind of participation or engagement in the present competition shall be construed as acceptance of the present terms and conditions.